Centennial Glen HOA Strategic Planning

A strategic plan is used to coalesce the vision and mission of your community. It addresses the bigger, long-term strategic issues that often get overlooked in the hustle of day-to-day operations.

The act of HOA strategic planning gives everyone a chance to look at the bigger picture, and what HOA strategies they need to apply to make the community vision a reality.

Centennial Glen HOA Strategic Planning

When coming up with our HOA strategy plan, consider the following questions:

- What is the identity of your community in terms of culture and aesthetics?
- What types of residents best fit your community?
- What types of improvements and events can you do to uplift your community's brand?
- How can you address the current and future needs of your residents?
- How can you improve the community amenities and infrastructure?
- How can you improve the board to better drive service delivery?

Strategic Plan vs Annual Plan vs Reserve Study

A strategic plan adopts a much longer-term perspective than a reserve study or an annual plan.

A community's strategic plan provides three key functions:

- It focuses the vision and mission of the community.
- It sets broad goals for future changes and improvements.
- It provides a structure and timeframe for funding these long-term goals.

A strategic plan is not a legal document!
